7x24 Exchange has made two separate $10,000 contributions to Samaritan's Purse and the American Red Cross, both of which are playing pivotal roles in providing emergency aid and recovery support to communities affected by the storms.

"Our hearts go out to all those impacted by these powerful storms" said Bob Cassiliano, Chairman & CEO of 7x24 Exchange International and President & CEO of Business Information Services. "In times of crisis, it's vital that we come together to support the immediate and long-term recovery of affected communities. We are grateful for the tireless work of Samaritan's Purse and the American Red Cross and we hope our donations can assist in providing the necessary relief to those who need it most. "

Samaritan's Purse is actively engaged in providing emergency shelter, medical care, and disaster relief supplies to those in need in the wake of Hurricane Helene and Milton. The organization's efforts are focused on ensuring that the most vulnerable populations receive the aid they require to rebuild their lives.

The American Red Cross is providing disaster response services, including shelter, food and health services, while mobilizing volunteers and resources to assist with recovery in the hardest-hit areas. Their work is essential to supporting individuals and families who are facing the aftermath of hurricanes.

"These donations are part of 7x24 Exchange's ongoing commitment to social responsibility," said Cyrus Izzo, President, 7x24 Exchange International and President & CEO of Syska Hennessy Group. "We hope that this contribution helps both organizations continue their life-saving work and provides hope to those rebuilding their lives."
